SMITH BOY KIDNAPED.

Both Grandfathers Want to Possess Bright Little Fellow.

Child Taken From Public School and Spirited Away on Train to Pennsylvania---The Father at Connellsville Wants The Boy Returned to Newark.

A case of kidnaping, which for boldness and careful planning beforehand, rivals any that have come to the notice of the public for a long time, took place in Newark Tuesday morning, the first act being about 8:45 o'clock. The child who was kidnaped is Clyde Smith, who will be six years old next April, and a son of Mr. James Smith of Connellsville, Pa.

The father, Mr. James Smith, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Smith, of 233 South Fifth street, and formerly lived in Newark with his parents.

Some years ago he went to Pennsylvania, and 6 years ago last August was married to Miss Mollie Gray, at Connellsville, Pa., and he is now living in that city, being a book keeper for the Rainey Bros. Coke Company.

One child, Clyde, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Smith and they lived very happily together until about a year ago, when the child's mother died. After her death Mr. Smith took his little son and went to board with his wife's people, Mr. and Mrs. Gray, in Connellsville.

Last December during the holidays the father brought Clyde to Newark for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Smith, and at that time had his father appointed guardian for the little boy. He made arrangements to have the child stay with its grandparents, and returned to Connellsville, December 31, leaving Clyde in Newark to be raised by his grandparents. While here he wrote a letter to the Gray family in Connellsville telling them that he would leave Clyde in Newark, and he himslef upon his return would go to a hotel. This he did, and is now staying at the hotel.

The arrangments appeared to be perfectly satisfactory to all concerned, and to all intents and purposes, Clyde became a member of the household, sharing alike with the other children, and being treated in all respects as one of them.

Last Valentine's Day Clyde received several remembrances from the Gray family, and a letter in which inquiries were made as to how he was getting along, as to his health and other matters.

This letter was answered about two weeks after by Miss Myrtle Smith, Clyde's aunt here, who wrote to his aunt, Miss Lizzie Gray at Connellsville. In this letter Miss Gray was told that Clyde was contented and happy, and was going to school and Sunday school. Miss Smith said that the information that the child was going to school, furnished the clue which led to the kidnaping.

Tuesday morning Clyde went to school as usual, in Miss Elizabeth Watkins' room in the South Third street building.

He did not come home to dinner on time, and as time went by the grandparents became alarmed. They were told by a schoolmate of the boy's that "Clyde's grandpa came to school and got him." Mrs. Smith had had fears of the child being taken from her, and when told this she said she felt that her worst fears had been realized.

She went to the school house and saw Miss Watkins, who told her of the morning occurrence, which she repeated to an Advocate reporter this morning as follows:

"Soon after school took up Tuesday morning, I answered a knock at the door, and there was a man standing there, who asked if Clyde Smith was in school. He was short, heavy set, smooth face and gray hair. I answered him in the affirmative, and he said that Clyde's aunt was in Newark on a visit and would like to see him. I called the child to the door, and the man said, 'Clyde, don't you know me?' at the same time kissing him. I noticed the man and woman through the front window, looking hard at the school house before the man came in. She remained outside. The lad did not seem to know the man, and my suspicions were aroused. He took the boy to the front door and I followed, when the man replied: "It's all right, he will be back in a few minutes.' They turned south in the direction I know Clyde lived, and I thought no more of the matter. The child was pretty and exceptionally bright, in fact one of the brightest children I have ever seen."

Having found this out, the relatives went to the Pan Handle depot, and found out there that a man and woman with a little boy had been seen by the ticket agent. The woman purchased two tickets for Pittsburg, the man remaining in the background. The three then boarded east bound Pan Handle No. 10.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Miss Myrtle, told the reporter this morning that the description given by Miss Watkins and the ticket agent of the man and woman tally exactly with the child's grandfather Gray and his aunt Miss Jennie Gray, and they are free to say that it was they who stole the child.

They say that the Grays and the child's father were always on good terms until after Christmas, when Clyde was left in Newark. Since that time there has been some estrangement. The father wanted the child to be raised by his people, who say that the Gray family are good people, but very worldly, and it was desired to bring the boy up under religious influences.

A telegram was sent to the father at Connellsville, telling him the boy had been stolen by his grandfather Gray. He answered "Rest easy; I'll look after Clyde." This message was received at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, and at 4 o'clock another came which read "Have taken all necessary steps. Do not blame you."

The kidnapped child is exceedingly pretty, having bright blue eyes, and light curly hair. He had gained a high place in the affections of his grandparents, Smith, and their family who are completely unnerved by the occurence.

They said that they had about completed arrangements to move to Connellsville in April, and would have taken Clyde with them, where the Grays could have seen him frequently.

W. T. Smith during the afternoon received the following telegram from his son:

"Connellsville, Pa., March 12.—Letter received. Go easy. Will let you have full satisfaction if possible.

(Signed) "JIM."

Moody's Appointment.

Washington, March 12.—The real reason for the appointment of William H. Moody as Secretary of the Navy to succeed John D. Long is that the son-in-law of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Masachusetts wants to come to Congress and Senator Lodge is anxious that he shall gratify his ambition. Lodge's son-in-law is Captain Augustus P. Gardner.

He lives in Moody's district. Moody is so strong in the district that not even the powerful influence of Senator Lodge could keep him from coming back to Congress as often as he desired. Lodge knew this and boomed Moody for Secretary of the Navy.

Gardner's principal contestant will be George von L. Meyer, the present Ambassador to Italy.

MOLDERS' STRIKE.

Cleveland, O., March 12—The threatened strike of the union molders of this city went into effect last night. There were 700 or 800 molders present and the decision to quit work was almost unanimous.

Texas Cyclone.

Dallas, Texas, March 12.—A cyclone struck this section of Texas last night killing two persons living in the suburbs and doing great damage in the farming district. The property loss in Dallas county alone will reach $100,000.

MOVE TO RETIRE

Union League Club of New York Learns of More Men to Leave the Cabinet.

New York, March 12. These were the reports at the Union League club last night:

George Bruce Cortelyou of Hempstead, N. Y., secretary to President Roosevelt, is to retire as soon as he recovers from his present illness.

Philadner Chase Knox, of Pittsburg, attorney general, is to retire from the President's cabinet as soon as the legal complications concerning the Northern Securities Company are settled.

James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, of Iowa, is to retire from the President's cabinet immediately after the final solution of the Cuban tariff question.

Walter Clark who was shot in the arm by Ulysses Craig on last Sunday is getting along nicely. The wound was dressed today by Dr. King.

SAFES

OPENED BY CRACKSMEN AT SEVERAL POINTS

TOWNS IN OHIO, PENNSYLVANIA AND KENTUCKY.

SEVERAL RICH HAULS MADE.

Postoffice at Roseville, Ohio, Banks at Christiansburg, Ky., and Townville, Pa., Robbed.

Christiansburg, Ky., March 12.—Seven burglars entered the bank of New Castle, the county seat of Henry county, at 2 o'clock this morning, blew open the vault and safe with dynamite, and secured $3,800 in money, $500 worth of stamps, belonging to the post master, and a lot of jewelry, and made their escape to the Kentucky river cliffs, where they are practically safe from arrest. There is no clue as to the identity of the gang. Three men stood on guard and held the citizens at bay with guns, while four others completed the burglary. The bank officials say that the bank will lose nothing as the loss is fully covered by insurance.

Titusville, Pa., March 12.—Safe crackers blew open the vault of the farmers' bank at Townville, this county, last night, and stole between $7,000 and $8,000. Five thousand dollars was in bills and $1,300 in silver and the balance in gold. Conditions point to professionals as the job was performed without a hitch. The doors of the private residences near by, were wired shut and others robbed of eatables, which were taken to a vacant hotel near by where they were prepared and devoured. There is not the slightest clue to the perpetrators of the robbery. An indemnity of $4,000 is carried by the bank against cases of this character.

POST OFFICE

At Roseville Was Robbed This Morning—People Didn't Hear the Explosion—$240 Taken.

A special telegram to the Advocate from Zanesville this morning says:

The Roseville, Ohio, postoffice was robbed this morning at 3 o'clock, money orders and stamps and $240 being taken. Two suspects have been arrested. The people of the village slept and did not hear the explosion, the robbery becoming known when the people went to the street this morning after daylight.

Cracksmen at Fremont.

Fremont, March 12.—Seven safe blowers blew the safe at Keil Bros. saloon in Woodville last night. They wrecked the building but got only $50. The explosion awoke the citizens who engaged in a running fight with the robbers. Many shots were exchanged but the gang escaped on a hand car.

WHILE

CURSING KELLY WAS STRUCK DUMB

PRISONER HAD TO MAKE SIGNS TO THE COURT.

HIS WIFE MADE THE COMPLAINT

That He Had Been Abusing Her and Caused His Arrest—Man Can't Speak Now.

Baltimore, March 12—John Kelly, 44 years old, according to a statement made by his wife, and supplemented by a statement written on a sheet of paper by himself and presented to Justice White of the Northern District, was suddenly stricken dumb while cursing and blaspheming.

Kelly was arrested in front of his home, 2603 Bruce terrace, on the complaint of his wife. Mrs. Kelly informed the officer that her husband, who was intoxicated, had chased her from the house, and had threatened her life with a razor. He had even struck at her with the razor, she said, but the blow had been warded off by her eldest son, a cripple, who struck the arm of his father with his crutch. While Mrs. Kelly told her story to the policeman the officer listened, expecting to hear some noise from Kelly, who was at that time inside the house.

"Your husband appears to be very quiet," said the patrolman.

"He is quiet just now, because he was struck dumb while he was committing awful blasphemy," said Mrs. Kelly.

At this point of the conversation Kelly came from the house and was taken into custody by the officer. The prisoner actually appeared to be dumb. His throat and mouth twitched convulsively as he made an ineffectual effort to speak. When he found that he could not utter a word he became so frightened that the shock sobered him, and when he reached the Northern Police Station he appeared to be entirely sober.

When taken before the desk Kelly made signs that he could not speak, and was handed a piece of paper and pencil. On the paper he wrote his name and age. When brought before Justice White he laboriously made all his statements in writing. Kelly pleaded to be excused, but was fined $5 and costs and sentenced additionally to 30 days in jail. Mrs. Kelly told Lieutenant Dempsey that in the midst of his cursing and blasphemy her husband suddenly choked and trembled all over as though he had a chill. Then he tried to speak but could only choke and groan.

GAS

EXPLODED AT PERU INDIANA THIS MORNING

INJURING SIX PEOPLE, WRECKING TWO BUILDINGS.

ONE MAN WAS FATALLY HURT.

Supposed That an Accumulation of Natural Gas Caused Explosions. List of Injured.

Peru, Ind., March 12.—Two distinct explosions which shook the entire city, wrecked two buildings and injured six people, one probably fatally, occurred here this morning. The injured are Frank Kiley, Sr., cut and bruised, may die; Frank Kiley, Jr., James Kiley, Miss Bridget Kiley, Mrs. John Hayes, and her baby all cut, bruised or burned.

A store building occupied by Newton Sarver, a butcher, blew up first. Mrs Hayes and her baby were asleep on the second floor. The Kiley family, aroused by the explosion were standing on a veranda when their brick house blew up. They were thrown into the yard, and bricks piled upon them. Frank Kiley, Sr., was dug out by people attracted by his groans. It is supposed that an accumulation of natural gas caused the explosions.

ANXIOUS

To Die in the Electric Chair, Says Young Jacobs, Who Whipped His Relatives.

Aberdeen, O., March 12.—"I want to kill somebody. Nothing will please me but death in the electric chair, and then I want my soul to go straight to h—l without being side-tracked."

Such were the remarks made by Chris Jacobs, the boy desperado, of Ellsberry, who whipped his aged grandmother and nearly killed his brother. A short time ago Jacobs hid in a bridge intending to beat several small girls to death as they came from the church. For the purpose he had a rail filled with nails. His brother, suspecting his intention, took him home, thus saving the lives of the girls.

PRESIDENT'S VETO

Washington, March 12—President Roosevelt yesterday sent his first veto message to Congress. The bill vetoed was one removing the charge of desertion from the naval record of John Glass.

PUTS

AN END TO AN OLD FEUD BY MARRYING

A KENTUCKY MAN ACCUSED OF A DOUBLE MURDER

FOILED BY A MOUNTAIN LASSIE

Romance Wins Out When Armistice and Arbitration Had Been Found to be Wanting.

Hodgeville, Ky., March 12.—The Shipp-Horton feud on the "Ridge" in Marion county, is at an end and pretty Mary Shipp a mountain lass of 16 summers, is the heroine to a pretty romance which is the sequel to a series of tragedies that were the outcome of a notorious vendetta in the vicinity of Mt. Washington, Marion county, for 25 years.

At the little Mt. Washington church the scene of many a feudal battle and where many members of the two opposing factions have died with their "boots on," Mary Shipp gave her heart and hand to Clarence Shipp, a youth of 17 years, who only last week was acquitted in the Marion county Circuit court of a charge of coldblooded double murder.

On a still morning last July two rifle shots rang out clear and sharp on the "Ridge" and Richard Horde and Dave Allen, two members of the Horton faction, fell dead on the public highway. Clarence Shipp was accused and the rattle of musketry and the grouping of clans told the neighborhood that the revival of the old feud was at hand. Then it was that this pretty mountain heroine straddled her steed and canvassed the "Ridge" for peace.

"Clarence Shipp must answer for the crime," said the Horton faction. Mary promised, and the next day young Shipp, with his gun shouldered marched into town and surrendered. It was certain death his enemies said. Friends he had none, since it was considered better that one feudist die for the sake of peace. One only remained true, and day after day Mary Shipp trod through the snow and ice and sleet from her humble home on the "Ridge" down to the county jail to take dainty things to eat and to offer consolation to the forsaken lad, who had offered to face death for peace.

Last week the trial came and evidence seemingly dark and overwhelming against the lad was introduced, when his only friend, the lass, took the stand and the youth was acquitted.

Arm in arm the two marched back to the "Ridge" and at the little Mt. Washington church, in the face of both factions, the two were made one.

"And may peace and happiness go with you, and may God bless you through life," said the minister at the conclusion of the ceremony, and the Hortons and the Shipps said 'Amen' for the sturdy lot of mountaineers, who knew not fear and who had faced death for 25 years, had acknowledged defeat at the hands of the pretty mountain heroine, and as they filed out of church, chatting with one another, some one said, "The feud is at an end" and once again they all said "Amen."

ALTGELD IS DEAD.

Ex-Governor Fell While Pleading For the Gallant Boers.

Illinois Leader Who Built the Newark Street Railroad Fell Unconscious at Joliet Tuesday Night and Died Wednesday Morning---A Sketch of His Life.

Joliet, March 12.—Stricken with apoplexy last night at the close of an impassioned appeal for the struggling Boers, John Peter Altgeld, Illinois' famous ex-Governor and political leader, died at 7:08 this morning, death coming as peacefully as his life had been turbulent.

With none of his relatives and but a few of his friends near, though sympathizers by the score awaited anxiously the news of his condition, the last spark of life sped from the body in the little room of the Monroe hotel, to which he had been hurried after the fatal attack.

Physicians were hastily summoned to his bedside and up to midnight their ministrations had resulted in the cheating of death. The patient responded readily to the treatment given him, when, without warning, he fell into a comatose state. The temperature went up, respiration became weak and hope was almost abandoned, but another rally came, and although the sick man did not recover consciousness other conditions were entirely favorable.

At 5 o'clock, however, a marked change for the worse came, but artificial respiration again brought him around. At 6 o'clock his condition was so good that all the physicians and attendants save Dr. Walter Stewart thought it safe to go to breakfast. Dr Stewart took a place beside the bed and watched and hoped for a return to consciousness. The ex-Governor, except for an almost imperceptible respiration, showed no signs of life, when a few minutes before 7 o'clock he grasped the bed clothes convulsively, his frame shook and then he lay still. A hurried examination showed a little life remained and the other physicians were hastily summoned to his bedside. Artificial respiration again was resorted to and other means to stay death were employed, but without avail and at 7:08 the patient was pronounced dead. Only twice after he was tricken did the ex-Governor speak according to those who were around the bedside. Immediately after his removal to the hotel he motioned to Editor Wheeler of the Joliet Republican, to step closer. "Don't give this to the newspapers," he said. "Mrs. Altgeld is ill and it would do her no good to know of this. Besides, the newspaper boys might exaggerate my condition and create unnecessary alarm among my friends.

A few minutes before he became unconscious he espied Dr. Cushing who was Joliet penitentiary's physician during the Altgeld administration. A wan smile spread over the dying man's face, as he recognized his old friend. He made a weak but futile effort to extend his hand and in a voice that showed effort, said: "How do you do, doctor?"

These are believed to have been his last words. News of the ex-Governor's death spread rapidly and hundreds of workers on their way to their places of employment stopped in front of the hotel and expressed their sorrow for the death of the man who made the poor man's fight his fight throughout his career. The body was embalmed this morning and probably will be sent to Chicago this afternoon. The remains will be conducted to the depot by members of political organizations of all parties.

Gov. Altgeld reached Joliet at 7 last night in apparently splendid health. He began his address with customary vigor. He denounced England's policy in the Transvaal and had reached his closing sentences, when he began to stammer. As he closed he stumbled slightly and fell in a faint.

Altgeld was born in Germany on December 30, 1847. When three years old he came to America and settled in Richland county, Ohio. He served in the Union army and in '75 went to Chicago with $50 capital and built up a good law practice. He became a Judge and in '92 was elected Governor of Illinois.

Though very wealthy at one time Altgeld's fortune fell off several hundred thousand dollars during the past few years, according to statements made by him several days ago.

"If I had not fought the trusts," he said, "I might be worth a million today, but as it is only one-fourth of the $700,000 I possessed when I began to fight them remains."

KNOWN IN NEWARK.

Ex-Governor Altgeld was well known in Newark. It was he who in about the year 1885 built the first street car line in this city. This line Mr. Altgeld operated with mule power for several years, changing the power to electricity in 1891. There was some rivalry between the city line and the Newark and Granville electric street railway company and at one time Altgeld had rails distributed part way to Granville, the ostensible purpose being to parallel the Granville line to the college town. However, the Newark and Granville electric railway company bought Altgeld out on April 6, 1892.

While Gov. Altgeld was financially interested in Newark he frequently came to this city. He had many friends throughout the entire country and many of them were here in Newark.

CANAL DEBATE

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF PEOPLE AT THE JOINT SESSION.

The Speakers Against Abandonment Largely in Majority—It Looks as If the Bill is Dead.

Columbus, O., March 12.—"To abandon or not to abandon the canals," that's the question which confronted the joint session of the general assembly of Ohio Tuesday, and more than five hours were spent in listening to arguments pro and con.

The speakers against the abandonment of the canals were very much in the majority, and had the assistance of a large and enthusiastic lobby. The galleries and floors were crowded with delegations from the various canal associations, and the yellow badges of the pro-canal men met the eye everywhere. The impression is that the bill proposing canal abandonment is dead.

Trying to Disguise the Issue.

The Advocate is constantly asked the question by people of both parties why the American-Tribune is devoting so much space to confuse the water works question instead of discussing the real issue on its merits. Of course these people thoroughly understand that the real issue is whether Newark shall own its water works or whether the city shall make another contract with the present water works company. The A.-T.'s talk about more time for discussion of the subject is simply that paper's tactics to disguise its real position. It is as plain as day that the A.-T. prefers an extension or renewal of the contract with the present water works company to that of city ownership. The desperate efforts of that paper to discredit in advance the report that will be made in a few days by the non-partisan water works committee can be accounted for on no other theory. If the A.-T. needs time to convince people that it would be better for the city to continue the contract with the present company, it should come straight out at once in support of what it really means. It can't fool anybody by trying to confuse the real issue.

The A.-T. will gain more time to present its side of the question by coming out frankly at once and presenting its arguments from an economic standpoint why another contract with the water works company is preferable to city ownership.

The President continues the work of reorganizing his cabinet, and with the exception of Secretaries Hay and Root, the McKinley cabinet will soon be only a memory. Secretary Long, of the navy department resigned Monday, and will be succeeded by Representative Moody of the Massachusetts delegation in the House. Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson are the next resignations looked for. No fault can be found. Roosevelt is entitled to a cabinet of his own selection, and not a transmission from his predecessor.

From the last two overwhelming victories of the Boers it would seem that they are more than holding their own against the hordes of British that are swarming over the veldts and among the kopjes. As the news from the seat of war all comes through British sources, the most favorable view of the British situation is always given. It is evident that the embattled farmers of the South African republics are not conquered, and it is to be hoped they never may be.

Tuesday evening at Columbus, the house committee on municipal affairs had under consideration the Pugh-Kibler municipal code bill, and listened to short addresses by the authors, Judge Pugh of Columbus, and Hon. Edward Kibler of Newark, explanatory of its various features. It is thought among the members who generally know that the bill will pass substantially as it is before the committee.

CHAMP CLARK STORIES

Judges Sometimes Indulge In a Little Dry Humor.

Poorhouse a Poor Place to Capture the Elusive Dollar—Anecdote of Early Campaigning in the Hoosier State—Tale of a Barefoot Candidate. Abigail Adams' Character—Trouble Raised by a Profane Crow—An Old Woman's Alibi.

[Copyright, 1902, by Champ Clark.]

Most people harbor the delusion that all judges are dry as dust and that service on the bench kills a man's sense of humor even if richly endowed with that quality originally. This is not true, however. Hon. William W. Rucker of the Second Missouri district was for many years a circuit judge, but he still indulges occasionally in a little dry humor.

A Poor Place to Make Money.

During the campaign of 1900 Judge Rucker in debate with his Republican opponent attacked the agreement entered into by General Bates and the sultan of Sulu as authorizing slavery. His antagonist replied that under that agreement provision was made whereby the slaves can buy their freedom, whereupon Rucker said: "That reminds me of the story of a pauper named Smith who was in the Livingston county poorhouse. One of the county judges was out there on a tour of inspection. He asked Smith how he was getting on. He answered: 'Oh, fairly well, judge. I have plenty to eat, plenty to wear and a good bed to sleep in, but this is the poorest place to make money in that I ever saw.' So it appears to me that the provision as to the Sulu slaves purchasing their liberty places them in as poor a situation for making money as was Smith while in the poorhouse."

Judge Robinson Chips In.

After listening to Judge Rucker's story Judge J. M. Robinson of Indiana related this: "We hear many pleasing tales of early campaigning in Indiana. In my district many years ago two candidates of different types contested for the honor of a seat in congress. One was a genteel good dresser and belonged to that class in politics sometimes denominated 'kid gloves' or 'silk stockings.' The other was just the reverse and made his campaign on foot, barefoot at that. On one occasion he won the esteem and support of the people in a certain neighborhood by running a race with the fleetest person thereabouts, the candidate carrying a heavy weight—to wit, another man—on his back. The diamond in the rough candidate was elected and thereupon went promptly barefoot to his opponent and told him that he had no hard feelings because the latter ran against him."

First Mistress of White House.

One of the great figures and characters of Washington society in 1800 was Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams and the first mistress of the White House. The love of John and Abigail deserves to be embalmed in immortal verse. It would be a prettier tale than that of Abelard and Heloise or any of the other love stories over which we cried in our earlier days and, if the whole truth must be told, over which we still drop a tear when we can snatch a few moments from what Mr. Mantalini would call "the demnition horrid grind of earning our bread and butter."

I honor Abigail Adams as one of the sages and patriots of the Revolution even if she did hang out the family linen to dry in the handsome and stately parlors of the White House. She is one of the most admirable characters of that heroic age.

I don't believe that her husband, old John, and her more brilliant son, young John, known to history as John Quincy, would ever have stretched their legs under the presidential mahogany if it had not been for her strong mind and for her brave, unfaltering heart.

Odd Love Letters.

If young people would know what love really means, they ought to read the letters which passed between John Adams and Abigail, his wife. They constitute one of the most readable and soul stirring books in our vernacular, completely answer the idiotic and pessimistic question, "Is marriage a failure?" and give the reader a higher and finer conception of human nature itself.

Abigail deserves well at the hands of posterity.

During all the struggle between America and Great Britain she was animated by the same spirit as the Spartan mothers who sent their sons to battle, bidding them return either with their shields or upon them, and of the Carthaginian women who cut off their hair and made it into bowstrings in defense of their country.

Yes, young ladies should read the letters of Abigail Adams and ponder the lessons of her busy and glorious life. It will do them more good—it will make better wives of them—than boohooing over wrongs, real or imaginary, deserved or undeserved, of the beautiful and fascinating Mary, queen of Scots, or of that other great historic tear pumper, the Empress Josephine.

Her maiden name was Abigail Smith. She was a New England preacher's daughter.

Wedding Sermons.

It's an old saying that "the course of true love never runs smooth," and it may be an abiding consolation to the young men who read these "Cloakroom Stories," in certain aggravating exigencies of their own lives, to learn that when John went courting Abigail and when her father, the preacher aforesaid, found it out, he raised such a rumpus that it warmed the chilly atmosphere of Massachusetts to a rather unpleasantly hot temperature and caused the waves to dash higher than usual "on the wild New England shore."

He had no faith in John, no use for him, and did not look upon him with any degree of allowance. The future president was then a briefless barrister. His father-in-law in posse didn't believe he could make a living for a wife, refused to invite him to dinner and peremptorily forbade the banns.

In those days they had a cruel custom—now, thank heaven, fallen into "innocuous desuetude"—of preaching a wedding sermon. It must have been a dreadful ordeal to "the high contracting parties." Speaking for myself alone, it was a tremendous undertaking to ask the consent of my mother-in-law.

A Daughter's Defiance.

When Parson Smith's other daughter, Mary, was about to marry young Mr. Cranch, the father, who liked Cranch, permitted the saintly maiden to decide on her own text for the sermon, and she meekly selected "Mary hath chosen the better part, which shall not be taken away from her," and the discourse was duly pronounced. But when Abigail's turn came she defiantly suggested the text, "John came, neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and ye say he hath a devil." Love laughs at locks and bars, and Abigail, despite the wrath of her theological father, clung to John and became the wife of one president of the United States and the mother of another, as well as the grandmother of one candidate for vice president and minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary to the court of St. James and great-grandmother to still another vice presidential candidate.

So they loved, married and were happy ever after.

A Patriotic Woman.

By circumstances over which they had no control and against which they were always rebelling they were separated a great deal, so it came to pass that they were eternally writing letters to each other—genuine love letters at that—when he was away riding the circuit, serving in congress or representing his country abroad, for she stayed at home and took care of the babies, the farm, the calves, the colts and the pigs while her liege lord was climbing the golden ladder of fame.

It was in a private letter to his dear Abigail—intended for her eye alone—in which brave old John made that famous and gorgeous prophecy as to the high place the immortal deed of the fathers, done July 4, 1776, would hold in American history.

The name of Abigail Adams is not so widely bruited as that of Zenobia, Semiramis, Catherine the Great, Maria Theresa, Queen Elizabeth or Joan of Arc, but she has her ample reward in the heartfelt admiration of all who know the simple story of her pure, patriotic and heroic life.

An Administration Candidate.

Members of the cloakroom coterie were detailing the woes of campaigning for election to congress. Judge Shackleford of Missouri said that the thing his enemies used against him most in his first campaign was that he was the candidate of the state administration, whereupon Colonel Patrick Henry of Mississippi said: "I once had a similar experience. When I went home to campaign for my first re-election, it was everywhere charged against me that I belonged to the statehouse crowd and had helped elect Governor McLaurin. Even some who had also helped McLaurin, but who had turned against him, brought the railing accusation against me. I said to one who was loud in abuse of McLaurin, 'Didn't you help elect him?' 'Yes,' 'Did you ever go to the governor and protest against the acts you complain of?' 'No.' 'Then you are particeps criminis with him in the very things you now condemn so roundly.'"

The Barkeeper's Crow.

Colonel Henry continued: "That man was not in as good a situation as an old woman I heard of down in Mississippi. A barkeeper had a pet crow which he kept about the saloon and which had picked up a good deal of profane lingo, common to such places, which he was very fond of rattling off on any and every occasion. The crow escaped from the saloon one Saturday night and took shelter in an old country church near by. Sunday the young preacher delivered a rousing sermon on the good spirit and the evil spirit, declaring that the former appeared to people in the shape of a beautiful, gentle, innocent dove, while the latter came in the shape of an ugly, cawing, black crow. Just about the time he had wrought his audience up to a high pitch of excitement the crow from his perch in the loft espied the water pitcher and glass on the pulpit. These things were all that had a familiar appearance amid his new surroundings. Being thirsty, he flew down, alighted on the pulpit to get a drink, looked up in the preacher's face and said, 'How are you, you old rascal?' Preacher and audience took to their heels. One old lady, who had a front seat and who was lame, was left behind, much terrorized by the inopportune appearance of the sable bird. The crow hopped up in front of her and said, 'How are you, honey?' The old lady, thinking the crow was mad about the sermon and being nearly crazy herself, turned around, struck at him with her crutch and shrieked, 'Confound you, whether you are the devil's messenger or not, I want you to understand that I had no more to do with getting up this meeting than you did!' That was her way of establishing an alibi," concluded Colonel Pat.

CABINET TO RESIGN BEFORE NIGHT

WEYLER IN ON THE ROAD TO BECOME DICTATOR.

REVOLUTIONISTS ARE ACTIVE.

New Cabinet Will Probably Summon the Cortez March 17.—King to Take Oath.

Madrid, March 12.—Announcement was made this morning that the members of the cabinet, headed by Senor Sagasta, would place their resignations in the hands of the Queen Regent some time today. It is probable that Senor Marlero will be entrusted with the formation of a new cabinet.

General Weyler at present minister of war, Senor Canalejas and the Marquis Armigo are certain to be included in the new cabinet.

General Weyler seems to be well on the road to become the dictator of Spain. It is a recognized fact that he is indispensible to the formation of any cabinet and he seems to gain strength with every crisis.

The new cabinet will probably summon the cortez to meet on March 17, to have King Alfonso take the oath after which the body will immediately adjourn. The oath is really a part of the coronation ceremony but in view of the unrest in Spain and the possibility that the coronation will be omitted altogether, it is deemed wise to have the young King take the oath at once.

Meantime the revolutionists throughout the country are reported to be active.

The resignation of the ministers is no surprise in view of the dissatisfaction over the policy of Senor Sagasta and his colleagues during the troublous times in Spain.

The members of the Sagasta cabinet are: president of the council, Senor Segasta: minister of war, General Weyler; minister of marine, Duke DeVeragua; minister of interior, Senior Alfonso Gonzales; minister of finance, Senor Angel Irzaiz; minister of justice, Marquis de Teverga; minister of foreign affairs, Duke de Almodovar; minister of public education, Senor Romanones; minister of public works Senor Villanueva.

Spreading Manure In Winter.

The agricultural department reports that in experiments with fodder beets followed by wheat in plowing under manure as soon as spread or spreading it over the surface of the ground and letting it lie two months during the winter the former method proved a saver of plant food. We never doubted that it would be so on certain soils and do not feel sure that it would prove so on all, but we think the lesser labor of drawing out in winter and the gain of having so much work done before the spring planting begins more than equals the loss where the winter manure is not washed away by spring thaws or rains.—American Cultivator.

Texas Bred Herefords.

Among the valuable items given in the thirty-sixth annual report of the Chicago Union stockyards appears the following: "It may be a matter of surprise to those who have not kept in touch with the marked advancement in the breeding of cattle now roaming the ranges that the sweepstakes prize for the best carload was carried off by Texas bred Hereford cattle. The excellence of the breeding and feeding of these animals was further attested by the result of the carcass competition, when the award of the judges on the hoof was fully sustained."

Preparation of the Soil.

The testimony of successful farmers the world over confirms the statement that thorough preparation of the soil not only increases the yield, but is the best known method of defense against adverse seasons. It is in fact the only known method with noncultivated crops and an essential part of the protective treatment of all cultivated crops. Thorough preparation and cultivation cost labor and money, but not nearly so much as a partial or total failure of the crop. And yet many farmers, strange to say, do not prepare their lands at all.

Powder For Loosening Stone.

Use judson powder to remove stones and stumps. With a crowbar make a cavity under center of stump or stone, getting well under, then use from three to twenty pounds of judson with half a stick of dynamite to explode. If the ground is firm, so as to give good resistance, you may look for the stump or stone in another locality. If the ground is dry, put powder in without sacking, but if wet tie up in old sacking or anything to keep dry. I have had experience in mountain road work.—D. L. Denny, Washington.

HAPPENINGS IN ALL PARTS OF OHIO.

All Sorts of Buckeye News Items Boiled So that Only Real Facts Remain.

Bellefontaine—The burning of the house of Mrs. Mary McCulley, a widow of West Mansfield, was attended with unusually sad circumstances. Irene, the twenty-year-old daughter, was ill in the house at the time it caught fire and was carried out by her mother. She died a few minutes later.

Akron—An error made by Solicitor O. D. Everhard of Barberton, has left the officials of that city without pay. The mistake occurred in changing the town from the grade of village to city, the new salary ordinance reading "village" instead of "city," and the council refusing to recognize it after discovering the mistake.

Columbus—The O. S. U. faculty has selected Prof. N. W. Lord as Dean to succeed the late Prof. Brown.

Sidney—Edward Shoe, charged with burglary and sentenced to the Mansfield Reformatory, was taken to that institution. He is 18 years old, and stole four bushels of corn. His father and mother live in Piqua and walked to Sidney to see him before he left.

Columbus—Governor Nash appointed Col. Harry M. Taylor of this city, as Assistant Adjutant General, to succeed Colonel C. B. Adams, resigned. Col. Taylor is now Surgeon of the Second Brigade, O. N. G.

GALLANTRY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Late arrivals from the Philippines tell a good story, which is printed in the Chicago Chronicle, of the embarrassing position in which a young woman found herself in one of the Southern islands. She understood the native language very well and a leading chief was much surprised and delighted by the circumstance. After some conversation he inquired if there was any favor that he could confer on the white maiden. She replied that she was lost in admiration of the beautiful beadwork which she saw on the native garments, and she asked that she be allowed to buy a piece of it, so that when she returned home she might be able to show her countrymen how skilled and artistic the Filipinos were.

The chief was astonished at the modesty of her request but declared that he could not allow her to buy. The white maiden would honor him and his people by accepting as a gift as fine a specimen of beadwork as he knew. And he thereupon quickly slipped out of his trousers, which he offered her with the true politeness of a child of nature. The young woman hurriedly turned away and the chief was sorely wounded. With considerable difficulty he was induced to understand that disrobing in the presence of ladies, even for such a generous purpose as he had in view, was not considered strictly correct in the white maiden's country. Thereupon he was mollified and later sent to the fair American the identical garments which had caused her so much embarrassment.

SHE LIVED

IN THREE CENTURIES UNDER ALL THE PRESIDENTS.

Miss Deborah King Dies in Muskingum County at the Age of 105—Engaged 40 Years.

A special to the Advocate from Young Hickory, Meigs township Muskingum county, announces that Mrs. Deborah King, a woman who lived in three centuries and under every president of the United States from Washington down to Roosevelt, died there Tuesday afternoon at the age of 105 years.

Mrs. King's husband died in 1876, and since then the old lady has lived with friends in the county, as she has no children. She was not married until she was 66 years of age but her engagement to her late husband extended over a period of forty years. Her devotion to an invalid mother made her postpone the wedding until after her mother's death and at that time she was 66 years of age, but in all those two score years Mr. King remained faithful and devoted to her.

A few years ago Mrs. King was a resident of McConnellsville and at the age of 76 years she rode a spirited horse from McConnellsville, a distance of 25 miles.

VERDICT FOR THE RAILWAY IN THE REED CASE.

Several Prisoners Sentenced—Business of the Day in Court House. Realty Transfers.

In the case of Henry Reed vs. T. and O. C. Ry Co., the jurors returned a verdict for the defendant. A motion for a new trial has been filed. Reed sued to recover damages for being ejected from a train between Granville and Johnstown, claiming that he had purchased a round trip ticket from Johnstown to Granville, and that the conductor on the down trip gave him a check good for transportation from Thurston to Columbus; that the conductor on the way from Granville to Johnstown, upon being presented this check, refused to honor the same, and upon demand for fare not being complied with ejected Reed. Smythe & Smythe; Kibler & Kibler.

Ohio vs. Chas. Murphy, motion for new trial overruled. Murphy was convicted of pocketpicking; he will be sentenced hereafter. Fitzgibbon; James.

Ohio vs. Chas. Turner, convicted heretofore of horsestealing, sentenced to penitentiary for four years.

Ohio vs. Ed. Root, convicted of horsestealing; sentenced to Reformatory at Mansfield. Fitzgibbon; Smythes.

City of Newark vs. P. C. C. & St. L. Ry. Co. An action appealed from Docket of Justice of the Peace, in which the railroad was charged with fast running of a train, in excess of rate allowed by ordinance. Smythe; Dunbar. Judgment for plaintiff for $5.

Mary E. Rush, et al., vs. Edward Hickey, admr., tried to the court and submitted. Swartz; Smythe & Symthe.

Matilda Ronan, et al., vs. Alice Watkins, on trial to court and jury; an action in ejectment, plaintiffs claiming title to 2 feet 8 inches of ground off of the west side of lot on the corner of St. Clair and Third streets in this city. Flory & Flory; Daugherty.

Wednesday afternoon Charles Murphy was sentenced to the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield. Execution of sentence was suspended to enable the Circuit Court to pass on the error complained of in the record.

Suit for Alimony.

Hattie Francis, by her attorney, S. L. James, has filed a petition in the Common Pleas Court against her husband, Clarence O. Francis, for alimony and other relief. The parties were married September 5, 1896, and the plaintiff charges her husband with gross neglect of duty. She says that he refused to pay the rent and gas bills and that he failed to provide her with clothing or any of the necesaries of life.

Waived Examination.

The case of Ohio vs. Jacob B. Moore who is charged with failing to provide for his minor children, was called in 'Squire Crilly's court Wednesday. The defendant waived examination and was bound over to the Common Pleas Court in the sum of $100. B. R. Nott represented the State, Smythe & Smythe the defendant.

THE STRIKES

Boston, March 12.—It is estimated that at least 15,000 men are on strike here today. The number is growing. A strikers committee called on Governor Crane today and he said he would do anything he could to settle the trouble.

Boston, March 12.—Mayor Collins has asked Senator Hanna to assist in settling the strike. Hanna answers he will if the way is pointed out showing what can be done.

Washington, March 12.—Gompers today received a request to assist the Boston strikers to settle their grievances. He refused to discuss the matter.

Norfolk, Va., March 12.—Cars are running regularly today. Strikers are still holding out

Some men get up with the lark, while others want a swallow the first thing in the morning

Lots of people acquire reputations for charity by giving away the things they no longer have any use for

Ambition and contentment seldom travels together.

ANNUAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION MAY 22 AND 23

At Granville This Year—A Good Program is Being Prepared by the Committee.

The Licking County Sunday School Association will hold its annual convention in Granville May 22 and 23, 1902.

A good program is being prepared and we are to have with us Rev. M. L. Bates our former president, now of Warren, Ohio, and Mr. A. G. Crouse of Westerville, state primary secretary. This promises to be one of the best conventions ever held in our county. Get ready to attend.

Watch this paper for further announcements.

Every Sunday School in the county should make its annual offering larger this year, because of the enlarged work of the Association.

See that your school makes such an offering.

The blanks have been sent out to the officers in almost every township. It is to be hoped that our superintendents and secretaries will give full and accurate statistics in regard to every department of the work.

This year's report will go to make up our part of Ohio's report to the International Convention which is to hold its meeting at Denver, Colo., June 26 and 30.

If one school fails to report our general average will be lowered.

Last year 107 schools of our 130 in the county sent in reports. This was a good showing but we can do better.

It is especially gratifying to notice the commencement program of the Perryton Legion of Honor Normal class.

Rev. J. H. McCartney has had charge of this work and we could wish that others might be as zealous in this good work as he has been. The work of the Perryton class has been good and we trust that every member may be present in the county convention. We are to lose Brother McCartney from our county and we wish to testify to the faithfulness which he has shown in all our work. He has been a loyal supporter of the cause and for the past few months has been filling the office of vice president of the county association. Our best wishes go with him to his new field of labor.

Normal Secretary W. E. Chamberlin of Granville, would be glad to hear from all who expect to complete the work by the middle of May.

The Monroe township association held a good meeting Sunday afternoon March 2 at Johnstown. Miss Bessie Z. Adams writes that there was deep interest in the work. Dr. Arbuckle of Columbus and Brother Reesce of Columbus, were present and had a part on the program. Monroe township usually does good work.

A visit to Harrison township found the workers wide awake there, and almost the entire township apportionment for county and state work paid. We wish other townships might follow Harrison's example.

The Washington township association will hold a convention March 20. Rev. B. F. Patt of Newark to be present and address the convention.

Newton township association will hold her next convention at Chatham and a county worker will attend.

The county secretary's Bulletin is just out and a copy will be mailed on request.

The Newark Sunday School Association is to have a meeting Sunday afternoon, March 30, at Taylor Hall, Y. M. C. A. building. Dr. Joseph Clark, general secretary of the Ohio Sunday School Association will be present and deliver an address

Every worker in Newark should hear him. It will be a good opportunity for the workers living near the city to hear Brother Clark who always has something good.

Remember these three things: Your school should send a full report of last year's work to your township secretary. Your school should make its annual offering for county work and state work and send the same to the township treasurer, and your school should send delegates to the county convention at Granville, May 22 and 23.

See the Bulletin for the requirements for a Banner Township.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Mimic Snowbirds.

Many seeds are scattered by the winter storms, and forest planting goes on in the woods long before we dream of gardening.

When the logs are hauled in from the woods, many of our country boys and girls have noticed small brown specks clinging to the snowy sticks. Examine a brown bit, and you will find it a veritable miniature "snowbird," in shape at least. Head, wings and tail are all there.

If you wish to know where this strange little brown flock came from, follow the sled back to the snowy woods, where the men are chopping, and somewhere near you will surely find a white birch tree hung with dark brown cones, the fruited catkins of last spring.

Shake one of the cone bearing branches, and thousands of brown specks like those brought home to the woodpile will sail over the snow. These specks are the small scales which cover the little seeds of the birch tree. The tiny yellow seeds are harder to find than their birdlike coverings, for they are lighter and are borne away on their wings. Some of the cones on the branches have lost part of their seeds and have stiff, straight ends. Pinch the bottom of a perfect cone and you will soon discover a method of scattering seeds as marvelous as that of the witch hazel. In ripening the rows of seeds, with their birdlike coverings, have loosened from the stem of the cone and are now held together by the contact and pressure. The one hard scale at the end unlocks the secret. Touch that and the whole flock of seeds takes flight as if we had unlocked the door of a cage and real birds were gladly escaping from their captivity.—St. Nicholas.

Three Beautiful Dolls.

Three dolls representing different aspects of Paris fashions have been presented the three daughters of the empress of Russia, the Grand Duchesses Olga, Tatiana and Xenia. The dolls were the gift of a famous Paris dressmaker, who lent all his skill to making their attire beautiful and effective. One doll is dressed for an evening party in a gown of wheat colored mousseline de soie trimmed with lace of a sage green shade. The mantle is of beige colored cloth lined throughout with white satin. White embroidery covers the lapels. A white gauze toque adorned with feathers and diamonds completes the costume. The second doll is dressed as a yachtswoman, the costume being made of white cloth. A small "sweater" and golf cape complete the effect. For the third doll a dress of the time of Louis XV. was selected. The gown is made of white satin, with garlands of flowers festooned around the bottom of the skirt by combination of ribbon. On the corsage flowers are attached by velvet bows, and mechlin lace gives an airy effect to the costume. A large picture hat is garlanded with pompon roses, and the flower effect is carried out even to the white leather shoes, which have tiny bouquets attached instead of jeweled buckles.—Albany Argus.

A Working Boys' Club In Chicago.

A Working Boys' club has been opened at 517 West Adams street, Chicago, where kind friends of the working boys have leased a house and furnished it. It is established in connection with the Champlin Home For Boys, which occupies the house next door to the one leased for the club. The Working Boys' club, however, is to be an independent and self supporting institution, with Rev. John Chatlin in charge. Its purpose is to furnish a good home for boys who are working, but earn small wages, the expenses to the boy being from $2.50 to $3.50 a week. Study classes, musicales, lectures and other entertainments will be planned. The club begins with a membership of twelve. The house is furnished with a dozen beds and bedding, and other furniture is promised.

Hundreds of boys go to Chicago from the country every year to earn their livelihood. They know little of city life. They do not realize how hard it is to live on $2 or $3 a week, nor do they know how to choose their entertainments. In a word, these boys need care where somebody will be responsible for their welfare. In the Working Boys' club they will find entertainment and society—in fact, will become members of a big, happy family.

Wonderful Little Insects.

There is a certain little fly that was observed to run three inches and make in doing it 440 steps, all in one-half a second of time. To equal this, in proportion to his size, a man would have to run at the rate of twenty miles a minute.

The common flea leaps 200 times its own length. To show like agility a man six feet tall would have to leap a distance of 1,200 feet. The cheese mite is about one-quarter of an inch in length, yet it has been seen to take the tip of its tail in its mouth and then, letting go with a jerk, to leap out of a vessel six inches in depth. To equal this a man would have to jump out of a well from a depth of 144 feet.

New Way of Spelling.

Around the garden Johnnie strolled
As happy as you please;
He saw the pretty flowers and heard
The humming of the B B B B B B.

He watched the busy insects and Grew bolder by degrees.
"I'll just catch one," said he at last;
"That big one I will C C C C C C."

He made a grab, and then his screams
Were borne upon the breeze;
He had been stung, which served him right
That horrid little T T T T T T.

Indoors he rushed, and there he stood,
With tears and shaking knees;
His mother tied his finger up
Which quickly gave him E E E E E E.

INTENSE SUFFERING

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. A New Discovery, but Not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable case of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered, to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gases in the stomach. He had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

"I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose As an experiment I finally bought a 50 cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given, and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured.

"There was no more acidity or sour watery risings, no bloating after meals the appetite was vigorous and he has gained between 10 and 12 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh.

"Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal.

"Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

Buy at Home.

When making your purchases always give Home products the preference. If you smoke, buy Newark cigars; when you order a sack of flour, call for Newark flour; when you need a suit of clothing, a pair of shoes, a hat, a bill of groceries, a silk dress, a new carpet, a stove or what not, buy it in Newark. Everytime you will get the best right here at home and at a reasonable price. Help to make Newark boom by buying in Newark. Keep Newark money in Newark and you will have a better chance to get a piece of it back than if you send it to Columbus, Chicago or elsewhere. Do your buying at home.

Desire a Fair Chance in Civilized Warfare—War to Continue Some Years They Say.

Washington, March 12.—C. H. Wessels and A. D. Wolmerans, the Boer delegates in this country, had a talk with President Roosevelt at the conclusion of the cabinet meeting. They called to pay their respects and to say goodby as they will leave for Europe about the 20th inst., after visiting Chicago and a number of other places.

In the course of their interview they stated that they desired to particularly make known to the President that they neither asked for, desired nor expected intervention on the part of this country or any other country.

"A number of mistakes have been printed about our mission to this country since we came to Washington," said Mr. Wessels, "and the worst one is that we are trying to get intervention. We know that this is not possible and as a matter of fact we don't want it.

"What we do want, however, and what we have laid before the American government is a request that civilized warfare be insured in South Africa. That is all we want now.

"We have not put before the authorities any request that this or that plan be adopted toward carrying out the rules of civilized warfare, but leave that wholly to the goverment, to take whatever steps it sees fit. We want a fair and square fight. We are confident that we will be able to keep this war going for a number of years yet, and we think that all civilized nations, especially the United States, are interested in the proper rules of warfare being carried out.

"We can point out numerous instances of foul work. It is particularly noticeable that the English press itself comments on the probability that General Methuen will be given decent care and attention by the Boers who captured him a few days ago.

"Yet what did they do with General Scheepers and a number of others? They killed Scheepers without a chance. That story from England points its own moral and an important one, too.

"President Kruger is not seeking intervention in Europe, and all stories of that kind may be denied whenever they art seen. The Boers have nothing to lose, all to gain, by keeping up this fighting. They may call it guerrilla warfare if they want to, but it is at least human warfare."

C. B. L. N. ROAD WANTS MORE TIME

The officials of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company appeared Tuesday morning before the county commissioners and asked for an extension of time. It appears that by the terms of their franchise they must have the road completed and in running order by Saturday next and this they claim is impossible and they ask for more time. They ask to be allowed until May 1 to get everything in running shape and the cars going on schedule time.

According to the statements they made to the commissioners, the line is now completed and connected up through to Newark, but that they have not yet power enough to run regular cars through.

In addition to this they also discussed with the commissioners the "over-way", to be built by the company across the Norfolk and Western tracks on East Mound street. The over-way will be about a half mile long and will also cross a couple of county roads.—Columbus Press.

CROTON NEWS

The People of the Village and Surrounding Country Appreciate the New Telephone Service.

Croton, O., March 12.—The men who have been working here for some time on the Johnstown and Croton Telephone lines, left the first of this week. When the matter of putting in an exchange here was first mentioned some did not look upon it with much favor, but it has been an unusual success. Many of the country people now have lines and 'phones in their homes that they would not have removed for much more than their cost. The telephone has become a necessity in both small towns and the country. All of these phones are directly connected with the independent exchange at Newark.

A CAPITALIST OF CHICAGO

[Original]

One hot day many years ago a boy lay sleeping beside a road leading to the town of Chicago. Little Jane Trevor happened to pass and stopped to look at him. Harold Gwynne was fourteen and Jenny was ten. Harold was an orphan, making his way to the city to find some means of making a living. Coming to a patch of soft grass under a tree just without the fence that inclosed Jenny's humble home, he threw himself on his back and fell asleep.

That very morning Jenny had received a silver dollar with which to purchase a new doll and a dress for it and had started out to make her purchases. She had no sooner shut the gate behind her than she saw Harold. There was a troubled look on the young face even in sleep, and his cheeks were pale and thin. One arm was stretched out, with the palm of the hand turned up. Jenny was not a practical child. Indeed, she had a great deal more heart than head, or she never would have yielded to the impulse to give up her beautiful new doll and bestow her dollar on the sleeping boy. That is what she did, putting the coin in his open palm very softly, then stealing away to watch from behind a tree how he would act when he should discover his good fortune.

Now, Harold, unlike Jenny, had on his shoulders a practical head. A successful business man had once told him that he could never make a fortune unless he had money to make it with. He had fallen asleep thinking how to get some money in order to make more money. In his sleep he saw a little figure approach and deposit something in his hand, which he in some way confused with what he was dreaming of—capital.

When he awoke, before changing his position he looked at his palm, where the silver dollar was shining in a sunbeam making its way through the leaves of the tree above.

Jenny was beside herself with glee at seeing him start up, close his fingers on the coin, look about him, then at the coin. Thursting it in his pocket, he got up and started briskly in the direction of the city. Jenny returned to the house happy at having made the strange boy happy. That night she was treated to a scolding from her father, who declared that she had no common sense and would eventually land in the poorhouse.

* * * * * * *

Fifteen years passed. Jane Trevor had lost her father and her mother. She had inherited a little money from them, but her father's prediction had been verified. She gave away all her cash and, having nothing with which to buy bread, had put a sign on her little home showing that it was for sale.

One afternoon a carriage stopped at the gate and a gentleman alighted and knocked at the door. It was opened by Jane herself.

"I notice that this place is in the market, and I called to inquire the price," he said.

Jane invited him to enter. "I think," she said, "I ought to get a thousand dollars for it."

"H'm," said the man, "a thousand dollars. I'll give you five hundred."

"What would you want with such a place?" asked Jane.

"Years ago, when I was a friendless boy, I received a piece of money in this place. I invested it and reinvested it and its accumulations until I made a large fortune."

Jane's eyes opened wide.

"You are the boy"— She stopped short.

"That fell asleep"—

"Under that tree, with your arm stretched out and your palm open?"

"And you are the girl"—

"That dropped my silver dollar into it and"—

"Made my fortune."

"Got a scolding from my father, who said that I had no common sense and would eventually land in the poorhouse."

"So that dollar came from you?"

"It did."

"Very well. The first thing I have to do is to return it with interest."

"It was a gift. I'll take neither it nor interest."

"Will you accept a little common sense or, rather, business shrewdness?"

"Perhaps."

"When I came here, I determined to buy the place where I had received my capital if it cost ten times its value. Its value you haven't the 'common sense' to appreciate. The city is growing this way, and this lot is worth $5,000. Ten times $5,000 is $50,000. There, if you wish you can stick me for $50,000."

"It isn't worth any such sum. Besides, you are trying to induce me to accept repayment for the dollar I gave a poor boy. That I will never do."

Harold Gwynne, with all his capacity, found himself checked by a woman who had no common sense. He sat thinking.

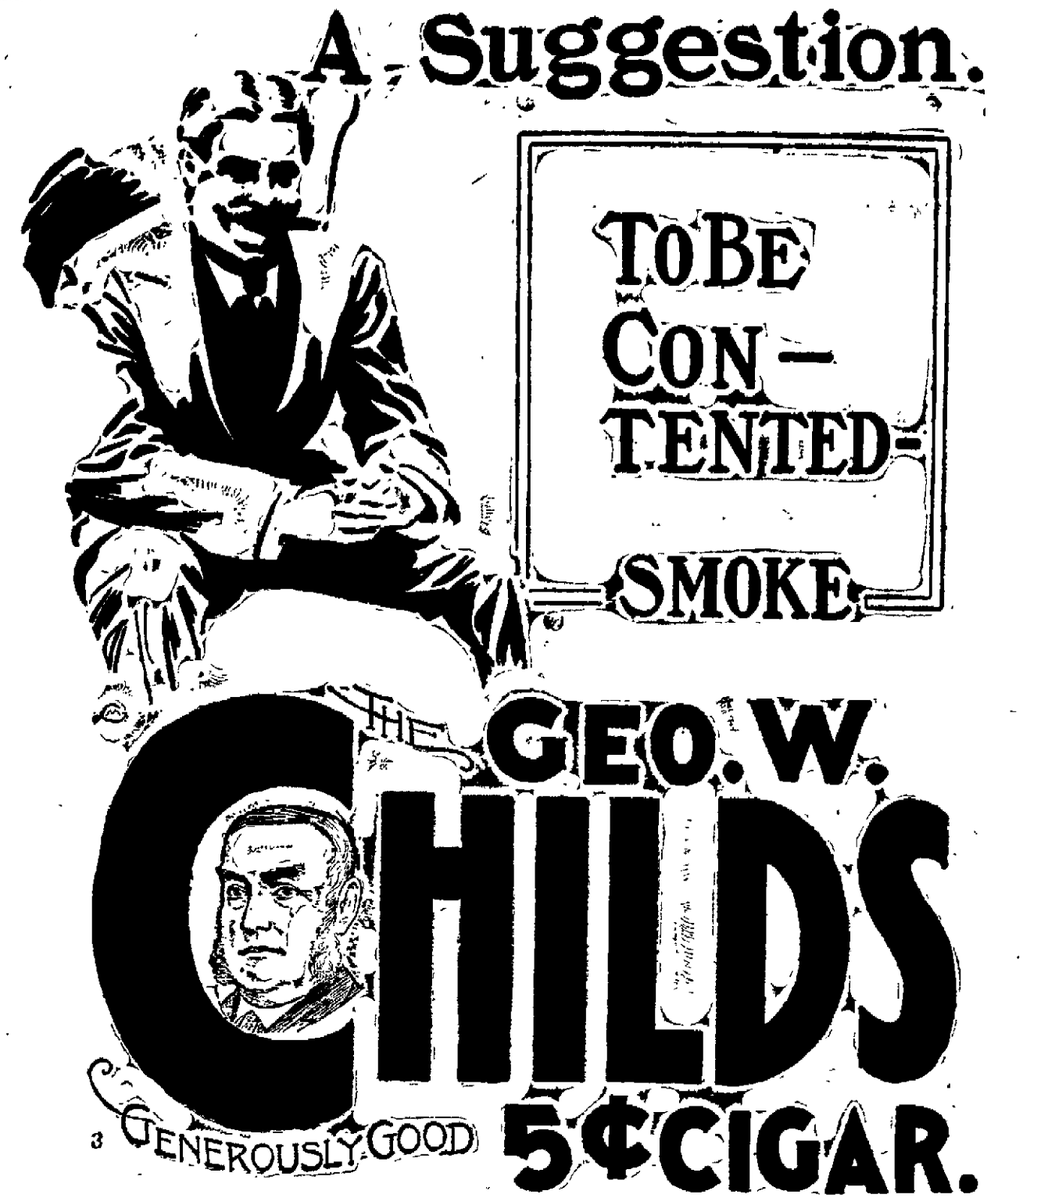

"How would you like," he said presently, "to be my dispenser of charities?"

"I would like it very much."

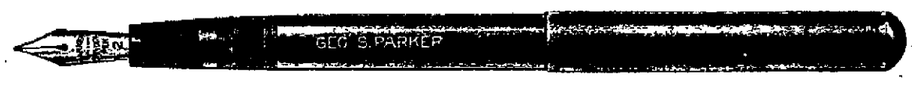

"You may enter upon your duties as soon as you like."

With this the capitalist departed. The next day Jane Trevor received a bankbook showing $50,000 to her credit, with instructions to distribute it among the poor during the year. Each year thereafter she received a like amount and was happy in being the instrument of making others happy. Finally Harold Gwynne convinced her that the plan would work better if she were his wife, and she married him.

UNCERTAIN

Is Elder Whether He is Divorced—Another Man Simply Annulled His Own Marriage.

Toledo, O., March 12.—Hermenous Elder finds himself in such a tangle that he don't know whether he has two wives, one wife or no wife at all. A few years ago he secured a divorce from his wife in a Michigan court, and on the strength of that married another woman. Now Wife No. 1 has brought proceedings for a divorce from her husband, alleging that no notice was given her of his Michigan suit for divorce. The case is now being heard here, and is the most complicated ever tried in the Courts of this county.

The marriage of Otto Thompson and Mabel McFerrin, which occurred here last November, was annulled without the aid of a Divorce Court, a most unusual proceeding, being the second case of the kind in the history of Lucas County. Thompson was under the age of consent when he married. He arrived at the age of consent, 18 years, yesterday, and immediately published a legal annulment of his marriage, which attorneys say is the same as a divorce.

Pennsy's Meeting.

Philadelphia, March 12—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad was held yesterday. The approval of the annual report and the adoption of a resolution increasing the appropriation for the pension fund from $230,000 to $300,000 comprised the principal business for the session. A resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of seven shareholders to select a Board of Directors to be voted for at the annual election on March 25. First Vice President John P. Green addressed the meeting concerning the plans of the company. He said the expenditure of $25,000,000 for equipment was necessary as the increasing business of the corporation required additional rolling stock. Arrangtments have been made, he said, to use this money to the best advantage. Speaking of the New York terminal, Captain Green said the company should not stay on the wrong side of New York City when it can enter the heart of the mertopoils. Al obstacles having been overcome th company will proceed with the work of tunneling under North river.

"I will try and write another short letter before we leave this port, as we start tomorrow for Colon. It is one thousand miles, and almost directly South, but we are going to take six days and nights to run that distance because we are going to run very slowy. There will be six ships of this fleet leave here and all stay together all the way. They are the Alabama, Kearsarg, Massachusetts, Indiana, Machias and Potomac. The Indiana arrived here about three days ago, but she brought bad news. Tht master at arms a chief killed a Japanese cook on board because he would not clean up some dirt around the galley. He is being tried by general court martial on board the Alabama and it is generally believed that he wil be sentenced to death.

We expect to meet the Olympia and Marietta at Colon. There the fleet will have eight of its ships together in case of trouble down there, and plenty more ready to join at any call. The Buffalo left here last week, but before she went she sent sixty of her landsmen to us, four of whom were my first friends that came from Chicago with me. I was the first of the bunch to be drafted and now we are together again. I expect to be home in about two and one half months if nothing happens.

He Loves Burke's "Peerage."

One of Andrew Carnegie's friends made the apparently contradictory statement that the steel king "has no use for lords and yet loves Burke's Peerage' more than any other book in his library." Then he explained. It seems that Mr. Carnegie was always and is still an ardent admirer of James G. Blaine, with whom one summer he took a coaching trip through England. As a souvenir of this vacation the American statesman presented the millionaire with an elaborately bound and very handsome copy of the famous book, in which are recorded the historic and heraldic facts about all the noble families of Great Britain and Ireland.

"Mr. Carnegie has read and studied that book by the hour," continued his friend, "and while thus renewing his memories of a man he so admired has accumulated a remarkable knowledge of peerage history, especially that which pertains to the Scottish nobility."—Philadelphia Press.

A Star Customer.

Rutherfurd Stuyvesant's return to America always gives an air of bustle to the old-fashioned locality of Stuyvesant square, and the lights gleaming in the great mansion give this neighborhood of other days once more a festive appearance. Rutherfurd Stuyvesant is really Stuyvesant Rutherfurd. He changed his name in order to benefit by an inheritance from his Stuyvesant relatives. He is a brother of Winthrop Rutherfurd and Mrs. Henry White, the wife of the charge d'affaires at the court of St. James. Mr. Stuyvesant has many ideas of another day, and one of these is the employment of a barber, who comes each day to shave him. Now valets are supposed to perform this service, but in former years Mr. Stuyvesant always went to a certain barber's in the vicinity, and his advent in this country brings great joy to the shop, as he is the star customer.—New York Times.

Designer of the Meteor.

A. Cary Smith, designer of the German emperor's yacht Meteor, whose launching was the fixed occasion of Prince Henry's visit to this country, is one of the leading nautical designers of America. Mr. Smith designed the Yampa, a steel keel schooner, which R. Shrdam Palmer took to Europe. At the opening of the Kiel canal the kaiser saw the Yampa and was so much impressed that he sought and learned the name of her designer. Finally the emperor purchased the Yampa, which he renamed Hela and presented to the Empress Frederica, and the yacht has since been used as a sort of training ship for the royal family. When the kaiser decided to build a new royal yacht, he sent the head naval constructor of the German navy to America to look over designers and builders, and he was not disappointed when that expert reported in favor of Mr. Smith. So the order received the order, and the Meteor, recently launched at the yards of Townsend & Downey, at Shooter's island, is the result.

CODE BILL

Kibler-Pugh Measure Started Through the Committee Gauntlet at Columbus—The Result.

(Columbus Dispatch.)

The house committee on municipal affairs took up the municipal code bill for the first time Monday evening and the first hearing was given Cincinnati and Columbus.

Judge David F. Pugh, of Columbus, and Judge Ferris, J. G. Schmidlapp, Judge William Worthington and Howard James, of Cincinnati, were present and addressed the board on the bill. There will be a number of hearings before the committee takes definite action in reporting the measure back to the house.

The bill has attracted considerable attention all over the state for several years. Those who were certain that the bill would never pass are now of the opinion that it will eventually be adopted and those who said that it would not be passed by this general assembly now say that it might pass the house. There are those who say that the bill will be enacted by this assembly but the committee now in charge of the measure is saying nothing.

Malt-Nut

THE TWICE COOKED FOOD

A TISSUE BUILDER

Malt-Nut, the New Food, Builds Fat and Tissue.

A food to be perfect, must meet all the demands of the human system for nutrition, and supply the waste that goes on in the body.

Wheat properly prepared furnishes the albumen, gluten, and phosphate needed by the body, nuts the fat and tissue. Few stomachs, however, can digest nuts. This is due to the fact that they are so rich in oils and also because they are not properly masticated.

A food expert spent considerable time in experimenting on a food combining wheat and nuts that could be prepared in a digestible form and still retain the great nutritive properties of both. He at last discovered a process and calls the product Malt-Nut.

By this process the wheat is taken through the first and hardest stages of digestion, the oil is extracted from the nuts and emulsified, which makes it easily assimilated by the stomach.

One-pound package of Malt-Nut is equal in food value to four pounds of beef or mutton. It has a rich, nutty flavor and is ready for immediate use. A few teaspoonfuls with the addition of milk makes a delicious meal at a cost of about one cent a person.

Those who are partial to a vari- food will find Malt-Nut delicious when cooked three minutes.

GRAINS AND NUTS

Their Combination Into a New, Delicious Food.

Wheat contains the albumen, gluten and phosphate needed by the human system, while in nuts the fat and tissue building elements are found. These two products, direct from the great store-house of nature, when scientifically combined, produce a food which meets all the demands of the system for nutrition and contains four times the nutrition of beef.

Wheat, oat meal, and other cereals abounding in starch, are very hard to digest unless cooked five hours, while nuts, by reason of their oily nature and our liability to improperly masticate them, are very hard of assimilation.

A food expert, who has been experimenting on combining wheat and nuts into a digestible food, has discovered a new and unique process.

The wheat is exposed to intense heat for several hours, which takes it through the first and hardest stages of digestion. The oil is extracted from the nuts and emulsified, a process which makes it easy of assimilation by the stomach and places it in condition to make fat and tissue as intended by nature.

This new food is called Malt-Nut. It has a delicious nutty flavor and contains four times the nutritive properties of beef.

AWAY

TO THE FATHERLAND PRINCE HAS GONE

MESSAGES EXCHANGED BY THE PRESIDENT AND PRINCE.

FRIENDSHIP 'TWEEN COUNTRIES

Has Been Strengthened by Visit of the Kaiser's Brother—What Semi-Official Paper Says.

New York, Mar. 12—Prince Henry, who is now enroute to the fatherland is due in Hamburg on Monday. He has left filled with kind memories of his American trip and is anxious to come back again. At the close of the last luncheon Admiral Evans, who accompanied the Prince over the route expressed a pretty sentiment in saying:

"I have only this to say to Prince Henry and my brothers of the German navy, we are glad you came and sorry you are going, and hope you will come again. It gives me great pleasure as the representative of the American navy to seize the hand of friendship you have so kindly extended across the Atlantic."

New York, March 12.—Prince Henry of Prussia, sailed for Germany on the Deutschland yesterday afternoon. A large crowd witnessed the departure of the ship.

Friendship Strengthened.

Berlin, March 12.—The semi-official North German Gazette commenting on the departure of Prince Henry referred in the warmest terms to the generous hospitality and unvarying courtesy and good will extended to the emperor's representative and continued:

"In the strengthening of the traditional friendly relations between two great powerful and progressive nations in the renewal of the old confidence, we couple in our thoughts, with gratitude, the countless thousands of American men and women who, everywhere, gave Prince Henry a joyful welcome coming from sincere hearts. It is just these prefectly spontaneous demonstrations of friendship coming from all classes of a people that give in confidence that the good feeling which has been engendered and manifested both here and over there by the visit to the land of George Washington will continue its influence between Germany and the United States politically untroubled as they are in any way, to the advantage of both peoples."

President and Prince.

Washington, March 12.—The following exchange took place between Prince Henry of Prussia, who sailed for Europe on the Deutschland, and President Roosevelt:

"Hoboken, N. J., March 11, 1902.

"The President of the United States:

"On this day of my departure, I beg to thank you personally, as well as the nation whose guest I have been, for all the kindness, consideration and good feeling I have met with during my visit to your interesting country. I hope that visit may have increased the feeling of friendship between the country I represent and the United States. Bidding you farewell, let me wish you every possible success, and pray, remember me to Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Roosevelt, who so charmingly and with so much pluck accomplished her task when launching his majesty's yacht, 'Meteor.' Once more, most hearty thanks. May we meet again.

"HEINRICH, Prince Von Preussen."

"White House, Washington, Mar. 11.

"Henry, Prince of Prussia, Steamer Deutschland, Hamburg Dock, Hoboken, N. J.:

"Not only have I enjoyed your visit personally, but on behalf of my countrymen I wish to express to you the pleasure it has been to see you and the real good I think your visit has done in promoting a feeling of friendship between Germany and the United States. It is my earnest wish that this feeling may strengthen steadily. Mrs. Roosevelt sends her warm regards, and so would Miss Roosevelt if she were not absent. Pray present my heartiest greeting to his majesty, the German Emperor. Again I thank you for your visit and wish you all good luck wherever you may be.

A Name Twice Made Famous, Now a Shining Mark for Imitators.

The name "Chase," twice made famous, is a shining mark for the unscrupulous to pounce upon and appropriate in order to foist upon the public their worthless preparations. These birds of prey, by using the name Chase, expect the public to be fooled into believing they are the medicines of Dr. A. W. Chase, who first became noted as the author of the world famed Dr. Chase's Receipe Book and family physician, and whose fame is now doubly increased by the wonderful success of his Nerve Pills, with Nerve, Brain and Blood troubles. They play upon the name Chase, but dare not use the initials "A. W."

They imitate, but dare not counterfeit the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, which identifies the Nerve Pills now recognized as infallible for building up pale, weak, thin-blooded, nerve exhausted sufferers.

COLLISION

CAUSED BOTH THE BUGGIES TO UPSET.

Harry Lindner of West Main Street, Was Hurt—Another Buggy Ran Against His Rig.

Harry T. Lindner, a cupola tender, residing at 650 West Main street, had a narrow escape from meeting with a serious accident on Tuesday evening. Mr. Lindner had driven down town and was returning home on West Main street. Just as he arrived apposite the old Simpson foundry he attempted to turn out of the road of an approaching rig, which was occupied by Carrie Troutfelter and another woman and a man. Both parties turned their horses in the same direction and the result was that there was a collision.

Both buggies were overturned and the occupants were thrown out upon the ground. Mr. Lindner and the Troutfelter woman were badly injured about the head, face and limbs. McGonagle's ambulance was called and conveyed Mr. Lindner to his home, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. Hornby. The Troutfelter woman was taken to her home in a buggy.

STORMY

SESSION WHICH WAS LIKEWISE FRUITLESS

Fourth Conference of House Republicans on Cuba Reciprocity Held on Tuesday Night.

Washington, March 12.—The fourth conference of the House Republicans on the reciprocity question was fruitless, like those that preceded it, the conference adjourning at midnight until next Tuesday.

The victory was with the advocates of reciprocity as the motion to adjourn was carried, 72 to 54 after a motion to amend the motion to make it a sine die adjournment, offered by Mr. Littlefield of Maine, one of the leaders of the oppostion, had been voted down, 61 to 79.

The motion to adjourn was made by Speaker Henderson, and the opponents of reciprocity claimed after the adjournment that some of their friends did not care to offend the speaker by declining to heed his appeal for a further conference. Earlier in the evening the opponents of reciprocity had insisted on a vote last night upon the main proposition.

The session was a stormy one. Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania offered a compromise proposition for a reciprocity arrangement to last until December 1 1903, which he claimed had the approval and indorsement of President Roosevelt. He also said he had assurances that if the house granted a 20 per cent concession the senate would not increase it.

About 130 members were present at the fourth conference of the House Republicans called to consider the question of Cuban reciprocity. Speaker Henderson and the leaders on both sides of the controversy were in attendance.

KRUGER

SAYS THERE WILL BE MORE GOOD NEWS

CONFIDENT OF FINAL TRIUMPH OF BOER CAUSE.

ENGLISH QUAKE WITH FEAR

That Methuen Will Meet the Fate of Scheepers—Barbarous Shooting is Described.

New York, March 12.—The Journal today publishes the following statement by Paul Kruger in a special dispatch from the Utrecht:

"There will be more good news yet from Delarey. My confidence in the ultimate triumph of the Boer cause could not be greater than it is now, and indeed it has never been shaken."

London, March 12.—A painful war situation and an exasperating censorship have set London on edge. Nothing has been heard from Lord Methuen since his capture, regarding his condition, and little is known of the movement of troops that formed part of his command, but took no part in last Friday's combat.

An incident at this particular time, that reopens a distressing affair, adds greatly to the peril in which Methuen is placed. It is the publication of a proviatt letter, detailing the execution of Commandant Scheepers by the British. The heartlessness in which that execution was carried out gives touch of barbarity to the grim affair.

Here is the story of a soldier who formed one of the hollow square in which Scheepers met his doom:

"Commandant Scheepers was shot at 3 o'clock. They brought him from town in an ambulance van with a band playing and the firing party following behind. When they got him to his grave he beggey to be allowed to stand up and face death, but they tied him down in a chair and blindfolded him. Then 15 of the Coldstream guards fired. The volley almost blew one side of him away and it was a sickening sight. He must have been a brave man. He did not flinch or turn pale. They buried him as he was and broke up the chair on which he had sat, throwing the pieces on top of him."

When it is further added that the tune played by the band that convoyed Scheepers to death was a rollicking one and that the victim was at the time suffering from severe wounds the rage and horror excited among the Boers by the execution may be imagined.

It is in the hands of men imbued with those feelings that Methuen is now a prisoner, and in the circumstances it is easy to discern his perilous position.

Denies the Report.

Washington, March 12.—The report was current in New York today that Attorney General Knox would retire from President Roosevelt's cabinet as soon as the merger suit was settled. When asked as to the truth of the rumor, Attorney General Knox said today that it was without foundation. Further than this, he declined to discuss the matter.

Rian-Skinner Wedding.

The marriage of Mr. Dell Rian, son of Mr. Samuel Rian, of Mouil street, and Miss Mabel Skinner, will take place this evening at 8 o'clock and will be performed by the Rev. Mr. Higginbotham. After the marriage the happy couple will repair to the home of the groom's parents, where a wedding supper will be served.

MISSED A FORTUNE

[Original.]

How often great inventions "cast their shadows before!" It is the province of the inventor to recognize an invention rather than to produce it. How many people without this power of recognition have let fame and fortune slip through their hands! Natural forces still unexplained every day show themselves to us as plainly as the sun in heaven, but we do not understand them. Even scientists live in touch with the great secrets of nature without knowing how to explain or utilize them. Once, by not understanding one of these secrets, I failed to make a great fortune.

In 1870 I opened a banking house. I was young at the business, and the fact that I usually had a large number of securities and plenty of currency in my vaults kept me in a constant state of uneasiness. In order to be in communication with the bank at all hours of the night I had a private telegraph wire run between it and my bedroom and taught my night watchman, Hartman, the Morse alphabet. My key was fixed to a table close to my bed, within a foot of my ear, and I could easily hear his call or call him myself. Once when Hartman called me I did not hear the click of the key. After that, in order to intensify the sound, I attached a thin metal sounder to the instrument. This focused the sound waves to strike on the drum of my ear and was a great improvement. It worked so well that I put a duplicate of it in at the bank.

One night when I was restless and sleeping badly I dreamed that burglars were in the bank, that Hartman was screaming at the top of his voice and that one of the burglars shot him. The report of the pistol wakened me and was so vivid that it seemed to me I had really heard it. I at once called Hartman. He did not reply. I called him again and again and at last received the customary signal, but there was something different in the touch.

"What's the matter with you?" I asked. "Your signal doesn't sound as usual. Are the wires all right?"

To this came the answer: "I think the battery is weak. Go to sleep, sir. Everything is all right."

I turned over and tried to follow the advice given, but somehow I had got it into my head that I had really heard screams and the report of a pistol. After awhile I called Hartman again. This time there was no great delay in the answer; but, accustomed, as I was, to Hartman's touch on the instrument, I suspected that some one else was making the reply, or, if Hartman was doing it, that he was telegraphing under compulsion. I asked him again if everything was all right, and he said that it was, but after some delay and then without the usual vigor; indeed tremulously. By this time I was convinced that something was wrong. Either burglars were in the bank or something was the matter with Hartman. In order to conceal my suspicions I sent a final message: "Very well. I'll not bother you again tonight."

I got up and, dressing rapidly, went out. Stopping at a police station, I told them that there were burglars in my banking house and promised a handsome reward if they would capture them. Four men accompanied me and, arriving at the bank, surrounded it. Then one of them pulled himself up to where he could look in at a window. Two burglars were drilling at the safe door. Hartman was lying on the floor bound and gagged. I gave the policemen the keys to the front and rear doors, the only entrances. Two men stood at each door and when I gave the signal turned the keys and entered with drawn revolvers. The moment the burglars heard the bolts fly back they started up, but the policemen had them covered and at their mercy. The bracelets were placed on their wrists, and the night watchman was released.

Hartman had been overpowered from behind by a man in rubber boots, but temporarily freed himself, when a shot was fired from behind that cut off his ear. Then a second man jumped on him and downed him. Meanwhile he was yelling at the top of his voice, and they gagged him. Immediately the telegraph key began to click, and, putting the muzzle of a pistol to Hartman's temple, the burglars compelled him to reply to my signal and to telegraph their own response. When the telegraphing was finished, they bound him hard and fast and, producing a set of tools, went to work at the safe. While they were engaged my second call came. They threw down their tools, sprang for Hartman, unbound him and compelled him to reply as before. He dared not telegraph me anything except what they ordered, for the man who held a revolver to his head declared that he knew the alphabet and would kill him the moment he sent a wrong letter. This was probably untrue, but it was enough to induce Hartman to obey him. However, he purposely gave way to a halting method differing from his usual touch, hoping that this would have the effect on me that it had.

But it is the sounder attached to my telegraph instrument that is the important feature of my story. I no sooner heard of the invention of the telephone, which was made known a few years later, than it occurred to me that I had really heard a faint reproduction of Hartman's screams and the shot fired by the burglar. It has puzzled me to determine whether the sounder had acted, though faintly, in place of the plates which are the transmitter and receiver in the telephone or whether the sounds were communicated to me while in a semisleep under some still unknown psychical principle.

AMUSEMENTS.

The production for tonight at the Auditorium is one of romance and comedy and is intended for the class of amusement seekers who prefer a story with exciting climaxes and plenty of comedy. The Prince of Tramps is the name by which it is known and it is superior to the majority of plays which have been brought out in the last two or three years with a tramp in the leading role. Tonight's play shows a story where an honest working man is forced down through a chain of circumstances and it is only through a "Knight of the Dusty Roads" that all is cleared up and his rights regained. The Yankee pill peddler and the gushing old maid also add much to the comedy of the piece, and taken all in all it is a production that will please most classes. New specialties tonight and Miss Harvey, the famous trombone soloist, will appear in her choir boy act with calcium effects.

The 'Bondman' dramatized from Hall Caine's famous novel by J. A. Burton, was presented Monday evening by the Chicago Stock Company, to the largest audience of any first night performance ever given by a repertoire company in the history of the Auditorium. There was not a seat left unsold at 3 p. m., and in the evening a dense crowd was waiting in the lobby for the doors to open so they might secure seats, but a great number were turned away, standing room being at a premium. The company is a strong one and give a good performance. The specialties introduced between acts are worthy of special mention and the Purvis troupe of trained dogs in their funny acts are alone worth the price of admission. Many who have seen trained dogs say these are the best trained animals they have ever had the pleasure of seeing.

At the Auditorium on March 17, David Higgins and Georgia Waldron who are so pleasantly remembered from their exceptionally brilliant work in 'At Piney Ridge," will present for the first time in this city their brand new play "Up York State." Mr. Higgins latest effort, and possibly his most pretentious, is a story of life and love in the region of the Adirondack Mountains and tells of the trials and sacrifices of a young inventor, who, although wrapped up completely in his work of discovery, finds time for a pretty romance with his ward, whom he has undertaken to educate, and who, owing to outside influences, is led into a marriage with a rich money-lender, whose dishonorable actions have brought him into ill-repute.

The story is intensely interesting, contains all that is necessary to win the hearts of its audiences and has that tinge of reality that makes it all the more palatable. Mr. Higgins has surrounded himself with a capable company and the scenic embellishments and surroundings are such that one might close one's eyes and imagine himself enjoying a vacation in the famous mountains.

ONLY A FEW OF THE KIND.

No company that we have ever head of has ever come to this city with more favorable comments than the deliciously funny comedy, "The Girl From Chili." They have the endorsement of the press, and this you may rest assured will be your only chance to see this excellent company as they make but few stops going from New York to San Francisco. We have no doubt of their success here.

SUMMIT STATION.

Mrs. Albert Higgins and mother were called to Dayton Thursday by the serious illness of Mr. Higgins' daughter. They are in Dayton at present.

During the wind storm of last Friday night the greater part of the south wall of the clay works were blown down. The walls fell on the machinery, but fortunately it was not damaged to any great extent. The wall was built of block and was twenty feet high and ninety feet in length. It wss not braced, however, and the consequence was it was wrecked. The wall had just been completed and the workmen were engaged in putting in the machinery at the time of the accident. The wall will be rebuilt at one.

At the Democratic primary election held on last Saturday, the following ticket was placed in nomination: Trustee, H. G. Woolard; Clerk J. L. Moore; Justice of the Peace, David McIntosh; Ditch Commissioner, James Gary; Assessor, East Precinct, Elias Williams; Assessor, West Precinct, J. H. McBride. A large vote was polled and general satisfaction was expressed ov all over the result. It is a ticket worthy the supoprt of every Democrat.

Lutheran League.

In the absence of Prof. Ottman, who is sick, Miss Mae Markham presided at the meeting of the Senior Luther League in St. Paul's church last evening. The meeting was a largely attended and enthusiastic one and the papers presented by Mr. Albert Benner and Miss Nellie Turner of unusual merit. The committee reports showed activity in every department. Twelve new names were proposed.

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Artificial Flower Trimmings—Ruffle Skirts.

Tiny artificial flowers are much used to trim evening dresses. They are tacked on the sheer material in irregular loopings and patterns and give a very dainty effect.

Ball gowns made of sheer silk shawls are among the novelties. The fringe is so arranged that it forms the trimming of the decolletage and droops in graceful lines on the skirt.

Gowns of black point d'esprit laid in many lines of shirrings are charming for slender blonds. Princess dresses of oriental satin thinly veiled in chiffon are among the richest full dress toilets. The thin chiffon overdress is in many cases embroidered and appliqued with sheer and costly lace.

DOTTED CHIFFON GOWN.

Skirts composed of three and five lace ruffles are favorites with tall, slender women.

The picture shows a handsome ball gown of dotted chiffon over satin of the shade of the dot. The waist has a round, square decolletage and full bertha trimmed with irregular applications of rosebuds. The belt is a sash of peau de soie ribbon. The skirt has a full flounce headed and outlined with the rosebud and chiffon ruchings.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT WOMEN ARE WEARING

Turkish Sleeves—Ribbon Embroidery and Woolen Guipure.

Pretty arms are growing scarce, so fashion authorities tell us. Perhaps this is due to the violent exercise girls are now taking. At any rate, the fact is conducive to the vogue of long sleeves. The Turkish sleeve is one of the novelties now seen on dinner gowns. It is made of some sheer material and is soft and voluminous, its saving grace being the peep of the bare arm between the shoulder strap and the top of the sleeve.

The dainty and charming ribbon embroidery is growing daily in favor. This is frequently intermingled with chiffon and applied on a ground of coarse net, reminding one of fish net. Pearl embroideries are very much in favor and insertions of cluny also. Cluny lace is especially effective where a transparent look is desired.

SATIN STRAW AND CHIFFON.

Woolen guipure is among the trimming novelties. To be fashionable it must be dyed in soft grays, mushroom and biscuit tints to accord with the cloth it adorns.

This pretty flower trimmed hat is of satin straw, with a tucked underbrim of chiffon, which is bent irregularly. It is trimmed with pink and white roses and their foliage, together with twists of black velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Epitaph In Martha's Vineyard.

In a quiet and deserted burying ground on the island of Martha's Vineyard, with not a few stones bearing dates of the seventeenth century, the occasional visitor, if he takes time to decipher them, finds many quaint epitaphs. One of these reads as follows:

Had charming grace and innocence
And all that's pleasing to the eye
Against grim death been a defense
Elizabeth had not gone hence.

—New York Tribune.

Lace on Table Linen.

Fashionable dinner and tea table cloths are edged and inserted with renaissance, cluny and guipure laces, and the prices for the best qualities range very high. Napkins to match are likewise expensive.

Peking, March 12.—The Chinese Government has presented to the United States minister, Mr. Conger, a strong memorial against the re-enactment of the Chinese exclusion law by the United States. The government here particularly objects to the exclusion of Chinese from the Philippine and Hawaiian islands, representing that the Chinese had acquired extensive commercial interests there and were closely connected with the islands by family ties, so that repression of free intercourse would result in peculiar hardships.

Then, Too, Maude is Stage Struck—She Offered Her Body to a Medical College.

Massillon, Ohio, March 12.—Miss Maude E. Smith, who offered to sell her body after death to a Knoxville Medical College, is a daughter of Councilman Peter Smith, of this city. Miss Smith mysteriously disappeared from her home last Saturday and no trace of her can be found. She went from here to Canton, from which place she sent home a message that she intended to leave that day for Toledo. The mother of the young woman says she heard her say several months ago that to sell the body would be a good way to raise money She had read somewhere of some person doing that.

"I thought she was just joking," said Mrs. Smith. "and paid no attention to what she said. Maud wanted some money badly for clothes Her father, as a punishment for running away from home several weeks ago refused her clothing she wanted, although he gave her a home. He said he would buy her the clothes if she said she was sorry. but she wouldn't She couldn't work much for a couple of months ago she had her hand crushed at a laundry at Salem where she worked when she ran away the other time.

"Maud is stage struck. That's what has caused her to do these things. She used to be a good, sensible girl. But that time when she ran away she fell in with a show company that played "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" until it broke up. She was always looking at pictures of actresses and posing and doing things like they do on the stage."

Miss Smith is 19 years old and quite pretty.

DYING GROANS

Drowned in Song—A Negro Woman Confesses to Complicity in a Series of Crimes.

Beaumont, Tex, March 12.—Mattie Bennett, in jail on the charge of murdering one of the five men found dead in the Neches river, has confessed to Sheriff Lindly that she was the head of an organized band of negro women and white men who have drugged, beat and robbed dozens of men.

She has not yet confessed to complicity in the murders, but the officers believe she will soon admit a part in the murder of Ben Pearson and perhaps others

It begins to be the general impression that many of the score or more of strangers who have been reported "missing" after they had reached Beaumont have been the victims of the gang and that their battered bodies are now lying at the bottom of the Neches river.

From the Bennett woman the officers have learned the procedure of the gang. The victim would be lured to the Bennett woman's shanty and drugged, and if that was not sufficient one of the white men would beat them in to unconsciousness. If after he had been robbed he was found to be dead he was carried to the river and thrown into it. If only unconscious he was dragged to secluded part of the street and left there for the passers-by to pick up.

Song was frequently used to drown the groans of the victims, so that pedestrians would not be attracted. A woman known as Mary Jane, now in jail, would do the singing when the victim was groaning or shrieking with pain, or Mary Jane would play the piano and sing "coon songs" at the top of her voice until the job of quieting the man had been completed. A white man known as Punch Prim is also in jail.

IN PRAYER

Woman Kneeled After Slaying Her Husband, and, Kissing Her Babes Ended Her Own Life.

Davy, W. Va, March 12.—A horrible tragedy was enacted here that cost the lives of two and which made orphans of two little children, in the twinkling of an eye.

Fred Goulding, a man in good circumstances, and well connected, came home to his wife in an intoxicated condition. It is said that he had frequenty come home at unsemly hours under the influence of liquor and that his wife had warned him on more than one occasion that something terrible would happen unless he mended his ways. Her prophecy was fulfilled when she calmly picked up a revolver and fired twice at her husband, reeling with drink, and killed him instantly. Walking into an adjoining room the widow of but one moment kissed her two little children, who were sleeping peacefully with a servant girl, and, after kneeling for a moment as if in prayer she arose and fired a bullet through her own heart.

The servant girl hurried for a physician, but both man and wife were dead on his arrival.

ENJOYABLE

Musicale Given Tuesday Night at the Plymouth Congregational Church. Evening's Program.

The musicale given at the Plymouth Church last night was an excellent entertainment and a success from every point of view. An audience of three hundred and fifty was present, and everyone was delighted with the program. The musicale was given by home talent and most of those who took part are well known in Newark. The following program was given:

Piano solo, Mrs. Walker.

Solo, Mrs. C. W. Miller.

Piano duet, Miss Mabel Cross, Miss Helen Bower.

Reading, Mr. George Hamilton.

Solo, Miss Mabel Phillips.

Mandolin trio, Prof. Bailey's Mandolin club.

Solo, Mr. Will Reynolds.

Reading, Mr. George Hamilton.

Quitar and banjo duet, Prof. Bailey's Mandolin club.

Mrs. C. W. Miller, Miss Mabel Phillips and Mr. Will Reynolds who sang solos, were at their best, and delighted the audience, as they always do.

Mrs. Walker's, Miss Cross' and Miss Bower's playing was much appreciated. The Mandolin club under the direction of Prof. Mailey rendered several beautiful selections, which the audience enjoyed immensely. Mr. George Hamilton gave four readings altogether, his reading fairly captivating the audience. The selection from J. Whitcomb Riley entitled "My Little Boy," was given with great effect. Mr. Hamilton was quite a favorite with the audience. Mr. Walker kindly furnisher a piano.

Church and Popular Amusements

At the mid-week prayer service this evening in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. Schindel will deliver a lecture on the above interesting subject. Services begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Dr. Johnson's long association with the Strand, London, is to be commemorated by placing a beautiful stained glass window in St. Clement Dane's chapel.

PADEREWSKI

Delighted Large Audience at Columbus Tuesday Night—Several Present from Newark.

Quite a number of Newark music lovers attended the Paderewski recital at the Great Southern theatre at Columbus, Tuesday night, and for two hours sat spellbound as they listened to the marvellous playing of the great Polish virtuoso.

The program was varied and included several numbers that displayed to the best advantage the wonderful technique and power of the pianist as well as others which called for the master touch of the versatile artist, with the perfect phrasing and delicate shading which marked the truly marvellous genius of the man.

The audience received the various numbers with enthusiasm, which would not be denied and Paderewski gracefully acknowledged the sincere tribute to his work by responding on several occasions to an encore, repeating Mendelssohn's "Spinnerlied" before he could go on with the next number.

Among those who attended were a party from Granville chaperoned by Mrs. Charles B. White, and Mrs. W. H. Davis, Mrs. W. W. Davis, Mrs. Hattie Smith, Miss Nellie Thomas, Miss Freda Pfeffer, Miss Dorothy Kibler, and Messrs. Edward Kibler, Albert Stasel C. E. Reamer, Emmet Baugher and wife, and others from Newark.

"DR." EAGLE

Pays His Fine and Gets Away From Washington Court House—Probably Went to Cincinnati.

A dispatch from Washington Court House, Ohio, to this morning's Cincinnati Enquirer gives the following additional news concerning "Dr." Pretty Eagle, the Indian whose exploits in Newark, Mansfield and elsewhere were given in detail in recent issues of this paper:

Pretty Eagle the Carlisle graduate, was fined $5 and ordered out of town, the charge against him being immoral conduct. He left for Greenfield, expecting to go from there to Cincinnati. While here he made several good investments in the pool rooms and had a numberof the "boys" in his room to meet his "wife." He says he never takes girls for a "wife," but always married women who are dissatisfied with their husbands, adding that they are easy to find.

SHOT HIMSELF BEFORE AUDIENCE

When the Curtain Fell Furnace Boss Jumped on a Chair and Drew a Revolver.

Sharon, Pa., March 12.—When the curtain went down in the last act at the Pierce opera house, in Sharpsville, last night, John Nelson, a boss at the Sharon blast furnace, made a scene that was a fitting climax to a play that was exciting and of the Wild West kind.

Nelson stepped upon the chair and pulled a revolver from his pocket. In full view of the audience he placed the weapon against his left breast and before anyone could interfere, he sent a bullet into his body.

Nelson is in a critical condition, but it is expected he will recover. No cause is assigned for his act. He is 26 years old and unmarried.

The new suits for ladies are all in—Silk Raglan Coats in handsome designs; also now being displayed.
